

10 Year Summary
1991	1992	1993	1994	1995	1996	1997	1998	1999	2000
68,923	70,853	67,576	69,233	71,107	72,007	76,894	79,143	76,311	74,851

	Q1	Q2	Q3	Q4	Average
2000	75,070	75,314	75,076	73,950	74,851
2001	74,221	74,564	73,842	72,684	73,824

The ADP decreased in the last two quarters to its lowest point since 1996. The magnitude and consistency of the decrease since 1998 certainly qualifies as a sustained and significant trend. For the first time in years, the ADP is very close to the Board Rated Capacity of the jail system 73,598. Why is this happening? Such a trend would seem unlikely given: a) the number of unserved warrants in California, and b) the reported number of individuals released pre-trial or before their full sentences have been served due to lack of jail space. The Board in the next few months will be looking into the issue in more depth. Some conclusions have already been reached. For example, we know that the bulk of the decreases have occurred in 14 of the largest agencies. More conclusions will be reported as the research continues.